

Influential Women of Los Angeles

Ranking as the top private investigative firm throughout the Los Angeles market, Kinsey Investigations, Inc., has spent the last decade solving some of the hardest to crack cases in corporate and family law.

As a woman-owned firm, Kinsey Investigations, Inc., partners with clients involving current and ex-employee issues such as embezzlement, theft, sexual harassment complaints and whistleblowers. They also investigate issues of divorce, child custody, family trust and beneficiary issues, missing persons, and even infidelity.

“As a woman private investigator, I blend in better and go unnoticed,” says founder and CEO B.A. Wolford.

“I can’t tell you how many times clients have told me they’d never guess I was a P.I., and because all of our employees are youthful and blend in, we’re often able to get access to information in ways traditional private investigators can’t.”

Solving most of their cases in a few days, Wolford says she and her 8-member team approach each of their cases with an unrelenting compassion that drives them to find answers.

“We get many cases recommended to us because we are woman-owned,” she says. “We’ve solved missing persons cases that weren’t getting attention, and we’ve helped our clients find information they’ve needed to win cases. People come to us because they want someone who will truly listen, and they’re looking for the compassion that comes along with the way we work.”
